Instructions: If you are unable to appear in person, or you appear by telephone, at your scheduled protest hearing before the appraisal review board (ARB), you may offer evidence or argument by affidavit. You do not waive the right to appear in person at the protest hearing by submitting an affidavit to the ARB. However, the ARB may consider the affidavit only if you do not appear at the protest hearing in person, or if you appear by telephone. You must deliver the evidence or argument and an original affidavit to the ARB before your scheduled protest hearing. You must attest to this affidavit and evidence before an officer authorized to administer oaths (such as a notary public). You are not required to use this form. You may submit a sworn affidavit by letter or other form, but it must contain the protesting property owner's name, description of the property under protest, and the evidence or argument.
