Harris County Appraisal District Launches Redesigned Website

Houston —The Harris County Appraisal District today announced a redesigned website with a new, updated look.

“The new website demonstrates our continuing commitment to the property owners of Harris County and other users around the world to provide easily accessible property appraisal and tax information,” said Roland Altinger, chief appraiser. “The redesigned website is just another way we continue to provide the property owners with the best products and services that we can.”

The new website now features a more intuitive and customer service-focused design with the most viewed sections – such as property search, forms and online services – easily located on the main page. The result of the redesign is a fresh new look with improved functionality resulting in a more engaging user experience.

About HCAD

The Harris County Appraisal District is a political subdivision of the State of Texas established in 1980 for the purpose of discovering and appraising property for ad valorem tax purposes for each taxing unit within the boundaries of the district. The district has more than 1.8 million parcels of property to assess each year with a total market value of approximately $556 billion. The appraisal district in Harris County is the largest in Texas, serving approximately 500 taxing units, and one of the largest appraisal districts in the United States.
